

SERCIAL 1965

For every wine we launch within this Collection, we will lift the lid on life in Madeira during the year of that harvest, and dive deep into the life of the member of the Blandy family leading the company at that time. John Reeder Blandy, who led the company in 1965, is the second family member to be associated with the Heritage Wine Collection.

Sercial 1965, one of the family's most iconic wines, is the second chapter in this prestigious series, with only 867 bottles being released, totaling 650 litres. With an eye on future generations, Blandy's reaffirms its commitment to preserving this unique legacy, with the past, present, and future rooted in the know-how and patience that have always characterized the company since 1811. This 2025 release marks another historic milestone for Blandy's, with a wine that has undergone 60 years of ageing in casks.

Tasting notes

Amber-gold with an old gold-greenish nuance, very exuberant and characteristic. Volatile, and resinous, with notes of very old brandies and citrus candied fruit. Some notes are reminiscent of yellow fruit chutney. On the palate, it is very fresh, dry, and concentrated, with invigorating acidity. Very intense, it leaves an exuberant finish with spice and resinous exotic wood notes, such as cedar and cigar box.

SCORES

96 Points, Decanter, 2025

Alcohol / 20%vol	Volumetric mass / 1009 g/L	Total acidity / 9,70 g/L
Volatile Acidity / 1,02 g/L	Total sugars / 60	pH / 3,30	Bé / 1,8
Harvest year / 1965	Bottling year / 2025
Bottle number /	N.º	75cL	867

Cellarage

Stored upright in a dark, fresh and dry room with constant temperature, ideally no higher than 16°C.

Serving

Decanting will help remove any deposit that may have occurred in bottle over time.